The Lilt of Life by Zora Cross

Read by Cavaet and Elise Dee | Total running time: 2:41:41

Published in 1918, The Lilt of Life was the third book of verse from Australian poet Zora Cross. The book, like her earlier works, largely focused on her experiences of love, erotic entanglements (notably from a woman's point of view), and motherhood. Many of the poems were written as an homage to her then-husband, David McKee Wright, whom she met while writing for The Bulletin, where Wright was her editor, causing a significant scandal in Sydney literary circles.
